Lessons for the Insanely Busy High School Teen

We know you have a lot going on!
Are you interested in a fun way to improve your brain power?

It doesn't matter if you played when you were young, or have not yet played an instrument, the benefits of music study can be had by all. Do it for your future!

We offer:

Piano
Voice
Strings
Percussion
Select wind instruments.
Guitar (classical, rock, and jazz)
Composition and music theory

Let us know what you would like to play!

Instructors:

Please visit www.rhapsodyarts.org to read bios of our teachers; we have some of the most highly-qualified instructors around!

WHY should I commit myself to something else?

Being able to play an instrument has many benefits. Not only does it improve mental health, it can also be very relaxing!

Did you Know:

People who are involved in making music in their teenage years score 100 points higher on the SATs than those who don't play music.

The very best engineers and technical designers in the Silicon Valley industry are practicing musicians.

Listening to classical, complex music improves spatial-temporal reasoning skills and organizes thought processes — in other words, it makes you a better thinker!

66% of music majors who applied to medical school were accepted, while only 44% of biochemistry majors were admitted.

Students with 10 or more years of music study exhibit significantly greater creativity.

Music study looks great on college resumes!

Private lessons

Insanely Busy lessons are sold in a package of twelve 40 minute sessions. All twelve lessons must be completed within six months of your first lesson. Lessons are offered in the day and evening Monday through Saturday. Private lessons can be arranged for any instrument and start at any time during the year.

Package price for basic level teacher: $410
Package price for master level teacher: $490

Recitals

Recitals are held in December and April at Rhapsody. While performing in a recital is not required, the experience is guaranteed to be fun! Go ahead and invite spouses and friends to come see you play!

Students of all levels are welcome to sign up for lessons or classes.

Please call Rhapsody's office at (608) 848-2045 for information about specific instructor and instrument availability.
